

The Kentucky Large/Food Animal VETERINARY Incentive Program is a specialized incentive project aimed at targeting veterinarians who have graduated from veterinary school or veterinary technicians or technologists who have completed an accredited veterinary technician or technologist program.

The program funded by the Kentucky Agricultural Development Fund, with support by several key Kentucky agriculture organizations, may repay a portion of outstanding student loans of an eligible veterinarian or veterinary technician or technologist. The individual must complete satisfactory veterinary practice, with the majority being in large/food animals.

Recipients may receive up to $6,000 per year and may be eligible to receive funds for up to three years. Awarded incentive funds shall not exceed $18,000 total or the balance of the outstanding loan.

Applications may be obtained by completing the below mailer or by visiting the websites of the organizations listed on the back of this brochure.

Program Requirements

- Applicant must have either a degree in veterinary medicine from an accredited college or university, or completed an accredited 2-year veterinary technician or 4-year technologist program.
- Applicant must apply for this incentive program within their first, second or third year of practice post-graduation.
- Veterinarian applicants must be accredited by the USDA-APHIS to perform veterinary medical tasks in Kentucky. (Applicant may apply while working toward accreditation.)
- Applicant must be in the first, second or third year of practice and working in a practice that devotes at least 50% of its time to large/food animals.
- Applicant must have a current outstanding balance on a student loan through a lending institution. (Loans from relatives or friends do not apply.)
- Preference will be given to applicants who are Kentucky residents that are working in an area of defined need.

Note: Compliance with the above requirements does not guarantee an applicant will be selected as a recipient. Individuals must complete an application and provide support materials to be considered for this incentive program.
